ANNEX I TO THE AGREEMENTESTABLISHING THE EASTERN CARIBBEAN CENTRAL BANK*FORMULA FOR SHARING OF THE PROFITS OR LOSSES OF THE BANK

(1) The distributable profits or losses of the Bank shall be distributed among Participating Governments according to the formula set forth below.

(2) The Bank in respect of each financial year shall determine the share of its distributable profits attributable to returns on investments of its external reserves used as backing for the currency as well as the distributable profits attributable to other revenue-earning activities of the Bank.

(3) The share of distributable profits or losses attributable to returns on investment of its external assets shall be distributed between the Member States in proportion to the respective amount of currency in circulation in each Member State. In order to facilitate the determination from time to time of the currency in circulation in all Member States, the Bank in its preparation of any new issue of currency notes to be put into circulation at the date of commencement of this Agreement, shall order that such notes be coded in such a manner as to permit the issue of notes only of a particular code to a Member State, and any subsequent determination of the currency in circulation in that State shall take account of redemptions of notes of the particular code issued to a Member State, notwithstanding that such notes may have been redeemed from elsewhere.

(4) The share of distributable profits or losses attributable to other revenue-earning activities of the Bank shall be distributable on the basis of the imputed equity interest of each Member State, which shall be the proportion of profits provided for under the formula in operation in 1969 adjusted to take account of the ratios determined under paragraph (3) of this Annex, but so as to ensure that the aggregate of all proportions is one.

(Substituted by S.R.O. 20/2016)

ANNEX II TO THE AGREEMENTESTABLISHING THE EASTERN CARIBBEAN CENTRAL BANK*COMPENSATION ARRANGEMENT TO COVER LOSSES DUE TO CHANGES IN EXTERNAL
VALUE OF THE EC DOLLAR

- (a) Compensation would be considered in the first instance to cover overall net losses in capital value of assets only where these are being managed by the Bank as fiscal agent and depository of Participating Governments;
- (b) Where net adverse movements in current payment commitments occur, the increment in these can be met by the Bank, in whole or in part and for limited time period, both the proportion and time period to be subject to the decision of the Council on the recommendation of the Bank after detailed objective study;
- (c) Where the net losses of capital value have occurred as a result of a decision by the Council to vary the parity, as far as possible the objective of the compensation should be to maintain the capital value of assets of those few states which have sustained net losses;
- (d) Where an involuntary devaluation has occurred, that is where either the reserve currency has been altered in parity, or where the par value of some other major currency has been altered, every effort should be made to assist in maintaining the net capital value of the asset portfolio of each Participating Government;

- (e) Prior to any action towards compensation in any of the situations enumerated above, the Bank is required to make a full and careful determination of all gains and losses both in respect of its own portfolio and in respect of the portfolios of Participating Governments, and to present this determination to the Monetary Council with a recommendation from the Board with respect to any compensation to be considered;
- (f) The provisions of Article (29) of the Agreement should be extended to provide for assistance by the Bank in maintaining the capital value of the external asset portfolios of Participating Governments as well as that of the Bank itself, and this could be facilitated by an allocation by Council from the annual profits of the Bank to the "Revaluation Reserve Account".

Additionally, compensation would be considered as compensatory financing for payments deficits attributable to a change in the exchange value of the EC dollar. In this case the following would apply—

- (a) As in the case of the compensation for capital value losses, the basis for compensatory financing would be a detailed study by ECCB, in collaboration with the Participating Governments, of the impact of the change in parity on the economy as a whole. The methodology of such a study would be informed by appropriate internationally accepted guidelines for quantifying the impact of changes in parity value of the currency.
- (b) Power should be granted to the Central Bank to establish special funds for various purposes, and specifically to establish a special fund for compensatory financing of the sort contemplated here in cases of changes in the parity value of the currency, natural disasters or other situations producing drastic declines in export earnings.
- (c) The special fund for compensatory financing should be based on the Bank's own resources as well as on resources mobilised from outside of the Bank. In some cases such outside funds may be made available in liquid resources in advance to the Bank, while in other cases the Bank may negotiate with other organisations for a line of credit or access to resources to be made available in case the expected event occurs.
- (d) In the case of compensatory arrangements resulting from deliberate changes in parity, the IMF would no doubt be privy to the economic circumstances justifying the changes and should stand ready to assist any country deemed to be a net loser.
- (e) The funding mechanism should aim at providing short-term credit for tiding over the initial period of adversity as well as funding to assist in longer term adjustment of the economy.
- (f) The compensatory funding should be supplementary to any compensatory financing of export fluctuations provided by the IMF and should provide as far as possible for entitlement with minimum conditionality.

- (g) The mechanism should provide for a combination of loans to Participating Governments, liquidity expansion through additional credit, and balance of payments assistance, the particular combination of facilities depending on the results of the impact study and the wishes of the Participating Government concerned.
 - (h) Where any Participating Government has suffered an adverse impact as a result of the factors mentioned, special consideration will be given to any request which it may make for temporary use of resources made available by the Bank, and allocated to Member States but for the time being not utilised.
 - (i) The CGCED should be asked to give priority attention to the provision of resources for assistance under this head.
 - (j) Once the studies which the Bank is required to undertake indicate an adverse impact the compensatory procedures should be automatically activated to the extent possible e.g. through the provision of increased liquidity to the banking system and increased foreign exchange. Government borrowing of course, will have to be the subject of a formal application.
